

Title II of the Every Student Succeeds Act: Preparing, Training, and Recruiting High-Quality Teachers, Principals, or Other School Leaders

The purpose of Title II of the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) is to:

- Increase student achievement consistent with the challenging state academic standards
- Improve the quality and effectiveness of teachers, principals, and other school leaders
- Increase the number of teachers, principals, and other school leaders who are effective in improving student academic achievement in schools
- Provide low-income and minority students greater access to effective teachers, principals, and other school leaders

Title II requires districts to "meaningfully consult" with teachers, principals, paraprofessionals, charter school leaders, parents etc., when developing an application for the use of Title II funds for state approval.

There are four major changes to Title II under ESSA:

- Changes the formula funding to weigh poverty over population
- Removes the requirement for a teacher evaluation system
- Eliminates the requirement for teachers to be highly qualified
- Allows states to blend Title II, Part A funds with other ESSA funds

Authorization of Title II Funds

Authorization in ESSA	Fiscal Year	Amount
PART A: Supporting Effective Instruction	FY 2017–FY 2020	$2.295B
PART B: National Activities	FY 2017–FY 2018	$468M
PART B: National Activities	FY 2019	$469M
PART B: National Activities	FY 2020	$489M

States can reserve no more than 5% of Title II Part A funds for state activities (with a limit of 1% for administration) and must provide 95% of Part A funds to districts.

Appropriations Challenges

Current Funding Level: $2.06 billion in FY 2019

Despite the proven impact of teacher quality on student achievement, President Trump has called for the complete elimination in FY 2018 and FY 2019 of Title II funds. The House followed suit in their LHHS-Ed appropriations bill for FY 2018 and proposed elimination of Title II funds, while the Senate restored funding to $2.05 billion in their bill.

Congress intended for ESSA to provide states and school districts exciting new opportunities to improve all aspects of education. This included Title II, Part A, which provides formula funding to states for the purpose of preparing, training, recruiting, and retaining high-quality teachers, principals, and other school leaders. Failing to adequately fund these critical professional development programs would undermine the bipartisan congressional intent included in this important law.

Program Funding Need

Congress passed ESSA in 2015, which was lauded by states, districts, and educators. This included strong support for Title II, Part A, which provides formula funding to states for professional development for all school employees. This funding is critical to supporting a well-rounded education for all students.

For health and physical educators, Title II funding can bring needed resources to ensure teachers are implementing standards-based curriculum, using best practices, and supporting innovative programs. Professional development opportunities for health and physical education are often limited in schools because there may be only one health educator or physical educator employed for each school. Schools and students will only benefit if health and physical educators have access to funding to seek high-quality professional development opportunities in order to improve programs, integrate cutting edge technology, and appropriate instructional practices.

Funding under Title II can also be used to train teachers from other subject areas and all school employees about the benefits of integrating physical activity throughout the school day. Research shows that students that are more physically active are better learners, have better classroom behavior, and are more likely to attend school. Title II gives schools the opportunity to train school faculty on how to create a healthy, physically active school environment.
